

Illegal Occupation

Sometimes people move into an empty property that they should not be living in. This is called 'Illegal Occupation' and is sometimes known as 'Squatting'.

It is also possible that a tenant has moved out and is sub-letting the property to someone else. This is a property that we can re-let to someone who is waiting for a home.

We will investigate any instances of illegal occupation and start any necessary legal action to remove any illegal occupiers from our properties.

You can help us stop illegal occupiers by reporting any instances you are aware of to any of our offices (contact details are at the bottom of our website pages). You can give us information over the phone, face to face, in writing or via our website. Any information you give us will remain confidential.

More about contacting us

To find out more about contacting us, see the 'How to contact us' web page.

To make a report via the website, go to 'How to contact us' web page and click on the 'Estate Management / Tenancy Enquiries' link.

All of our office contact details are at the bottom of each web page.